FOR NEXT GOVERNOR OF PENNSYLVANIA

ADJT. GEN. D. H. HASTINGS,

Subject to the decision of the Republican State Convention

EDITORIAL BRIEFS

A PHILADELPHIA young woman has just died from insanity caused by a love affair.

SOME men are born great, others achieve greatness, and then others run for office and get 60,000 majority.

DEMOCRATIC frauds have been discovered in Albany, N. Y. That party fraud business seems to be contagious this year.

VERMONT has the proud distinction of being the only State in which the Republican party has never encountered a disaster.

A fine monument to General McClellan has been completed in New Jersey. Still New York has not erected a monument to General Grant.

ALREADY the democrats are discussing Campbell as a suitable candidate for '92. That's all right; but if he gets there he will have a Hill to climb over first.

THE seething mass of corruption in English aristocratic and Royalty circles threatens to again boil over and disclose its hideousness to the world.

VICE-PRESIDENT MORTON'S apartment-house at Washington has no bar, never had any, and never will have any while he owns it. Now will some cranks sit down and keep quiet?

How is this for a democratic combination for 1892:—For President David Bennett Hill, now Governor of New York. For Vice President, James E Campbell, Esq., now Governor-elect of Ohio.

A BROTHER of Prince Hatzfeldt, who married Miss Huntington and $2,000,000 the other day, runs a beer saloon in an Ohio town. He boasts that there is one man in the family who can and does make his own living.

GOVERNOR FORAKER, of Ohio, is a philosopher and takes his defeat like the good soldier that he is. His letter of congratulation to his successful competitor is a model of good taste and an example for defeated candidates.

LOST—Henry K Boyer, late candidate of the republican party for State Treasurer. Ninety days hence: Found—Henry K Boyer; has just succeeded in crawling out of the overwhelming majority Pennsylvania filed onto him.

BUSINESS is booming throughout the land, notwithstanding the croaks of the Free Traders. The country, as a whole, never was more prosperous than it is to-day, and all signs point to a continuance of this excellent state of affairs.

THE next campaign, as soon as the excitement over the election dies out, will be the contest for Speaker of the House of Representatives. But as it will be confined to Washington, the country will escape the noise and din of the battle.

THE Czar has magnanimously promised the support of his powerful friendship to Germany and the triple alliance. Thus another guarantee for the peace of Europe is secured, and Bismarck will have an appetite for his dinner again.

SEVENTEEN years ago last Saturday the great Boston fire occurred, which laid a large part of the business part of the city in ashes. The result has been a finer and more beautiful city, so that after all the fire was perhaps but a blessing in disguise.

GENERAL GREELY'S urgent request for a reorganization of the Signal Corps will strike the public as well founded. If incompetent men are employed they should be got rid of, and there is not much room for doubt that there are incompetent men in the service.

THE improvements to the Edgar Thomson Steel-Works, at Braddock, will increase its capital stock to $7,000. These are the times when the iron and steel interests prosper and plan hopefully for the future. Now if protection will only continue in the ascendent.

MONTANA A STATE.

The result in Montana having been officially declared by the State Canvassing Board, the President has issued the necessary proclamation admitting the new state into the Union. This will, for one thing, dispose of Judge De Wolf, who has been cutting a sorry figure in the contention over the vote of Silver Bow County.

This rabid Democrat was appointed District Judge by President Cleveland, and he was allowed to remain in office by President Harrison. The Democrats made him their candidate for justice of the Supreme Court. As such he had a large personal interest in the vote of the disputed precincts in Silver Bow County. Hence, when the Democrats began legal proceedings to compel the canvassing board to accept the fraudulent returns from this disputed precinct they, of course, went before Judge De Wolf. He did not refuse to sit in judgment on his own case, but, to secure jurisdiction, he said that he would exclude the vote for chief justice from his writ of mandamus. But of course, if the votes were legally returned for the other candidates, they must be likewise counted for chief justice, and such a pretext to secure jurisdiction of a case in which the Judge was personally interested would deceive nobody.

Starting out in such a discreditable way there need be no surprise at anything else Judge De Wolf did. He decided the case in his own favor and then refused to allow any appeal. He ordered a return to be made of these votes. But as the county canvassing board had met and adjourned there was nobody to act on his mandamus. So the Democrat clerk of the board resolved himself into a canvassing board and made out a return himself, and, of course, included the vote for Judge De Wolf. This was delivered to the State Canvassing Board. But as it was worthless and illegal the state board took no notice of it. This is the return, however, on which the Democrats threaten to set up a rump Legislature and elect two United States senators.

The facts about this disputed precinct are well known. The law required that there should be five judges of election, but as it was easier to deal with a less number the conspirators had only three appointed. Then, contrary to law, the clerks of election and everybody excepting these three judges were excluded from the room when the votes were counted. Thick paper was pasted over the windows, and the doors were locked. The returns were not certified by the clerks according to law. Out of an alleged 174 votes cast only three were returned for the Republicans, but a large number of Republicans made affidavit that they voted for their party ticket at this precinct. It was on such a return as this that the Democrats hoped to capture the Legislature and two United States senators. And Judge De Wolf did his best to help out the fraud from which he was to profit.

The Democrats in Montana may bluster and create a rump Legislature but it will avail them not. They conspired to the best of their ability, and that of no mean order, to carry the new state by fraud. They had the aid of several ambitious millionaires and the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. But they failed, and may yet live to regret their work.

GOV. BEAVER pays this tribute to the memory of late Treasurer, William B. Hart: "The official position of the deceased, his worth as a citizen, his blameless character as a man, and his past record in the civil and military service of the Commonwealth and the country, combine to make his loss one which the people of the entire Commonwealth will deplore."

LET THE PARTY MOVE FORWARD.

The Republican party is now in a position similar to that the Union army occupied after the opening battle in the Wilderness. It has met defeat in some of its old-time strongholds. In Massachusetts the Republican ticket is saved, but by a greatly reduced majority. A Democratic governor and Legislature are elected in Ohio, and Iowa records an anti-Republican majority for the first time since the birth of the party. It is true that these reverses are largely due to causes that have little to do with national politics, but it will be claimed, and in fact is already vehemently asserted by the free-trade organs, that they are a rebuke to the party and its policy. And the Republican party must expect that a certain popular impression will be made by these claims.

It can best meet this situation by following the example of the Union army in the Wilderness. Let it move forward all along the line. Let it show more conspicuously than it ever has done yet that it is the party of clean, honest government, of civil service reform, of an honest ballot and of Protection to American industries. It should enforce the Civil Service law, not only in letter and spirit, but demand the extension and strengthening of its provisions. The appointments to office during the present Administration have offered a striking contrast to those of the Cleveland Administration. Let them become even more conspicuous by contrast. The freedom of the party's record from even the shadow of corruption should be so plain that he who runs may read; and its advocacy of the rights of the workingman and of a free and honest ballot for all should be made still more manifest than in the past.

The people demand immeasurably more from the Republican party than they do from the Democratic party. The second can retain its voters by doing comparatively well; the first can keep its hold upon its followers only by doing positively well. A Democratic President can appoint hundreds of rascals and incompetents to office and at the next election its voters will go to the polls and vote solidly for his re-election; but if a Republican President appoints one incompetent person to office it is certain to dampen at once the ardor of his party followers. It is the strength of the Republican party that it contains within its ranks the great majority of the intelligence and worth in the country, but the fact that this makes its constituency more critical and exacting constitutes at the same time its weakness. The Republican voters can be satisfied only by the party achieving the best attainable.

The duty of the party in the present situation, then, is to do as General Grant's army did after the first day's fight in the Wilderness. Let it elevate its standard and move forward all along the line.

THE Catholic Congress which convened in Baltimore on Sunday is a notable gathering. It was the commencement of a triple celebration, the one hundredth anniversary of the appointment of the first Bishop, the inauguration of the first Congress of Catholic Laymen held in the United States, and the dedication of the new National University for Catholics. Nearly ten thousand strangers had assembled to witness the opening session.

THE great Paris Exposition closed Wednesday evening with even more brilliancy than it started. Four hundred thousand people are said to have been present at the closing fete, and barring some slight accidents due to the enormous crowd, everything passed off happily. The French Government is to be congratulated on the magnificent success of the enterprise, and Republicanism everywhere may rejoice over it, because it does a great deal for the principle of popular government.

THE Pillsbury and Washburn flouring mills of Minneapolis with their water power and elevators have fallen into the capacious maw of an English syndicate, and $8,000,000 has fallen into American pocketbooks that are as capacious. It is presumed that the English are overjoyed at such bargains. It is known that the Americans are. The English seem to know nothing about the "ground floor" of a business. The loft or cupola, so to speak, is good enough for them.

THE SUGAR TRUST DECISION.

The New York Court of Appeals has yet to pass upon the legality of such combinations as the Sugar Trust, but their case goes up to it with a very black eye given to it by the concuring opinion of four judges, with the dissent of none.

The questions presented came up in an application for the forfeiture of the corporate rights and for the dissolution of the North River Sugar Refining Company for entering into the Sugar Trust combination. Judge Barrett decided that the company had thereby abused its powers and that the legal results, forfeiture and dissolution, justly followed. In this he is sustained by the General Term, which holds that the uniting of corporations into a practical consolidation or partnership, not authorized by their charter or effected under the state, warrants the forfeiture of corporate existence. If the Court of Appeals takes the same ground the combinations known as "trusts" can not exist in New York State. A decision of this character by the courts of Iowa or Wisconsin would have been of much less consequence. It would have "scotched" the trusts no doubt, but could not have killed them. Such a blow right in the seat of their power is another matter. If "trusts" must leave all New York corporations out of their combinations they will be but tame affairs at the best and, for most purposes, hardly worth forming.

There is little doubt, however, that the reasoning and authority which have led the New York General Term to declare trusts illegal will have equal weight with the courts of other states, strengthened, as they will be, by the precedent of the New York decision. The trust idea was a colossal conception, magnificent in its proportions, but directly opposed by the interests of the great majority—the consumers. As viewed by the New York Court, it is also wholly antagonistic to the long established legal principles that agreements to stifle fair competition in trade or to compel individuals or corporations to pay undue prices for anything, are void in law as well as wrong in morals.

POSTMASTER-GEN WANAMAKER in his forthcoming report to Congress will recommend delivery by carriers in cities and towns of more than 5,000 inhabitants. The present limit is 10,000. The acceptance of the recommendation would be a great accommodation to many of our near town neighbors. The entire number of towns that would be affected in this country would be only about 150, and as each would need but two or three carriers in order to have a morning and afternoon delivery the additional cost to the department would not be great.

CANADA is now getting aroused and has started a movement to catch the South American trade by starting a line of steamers between Canadian ports and the West Indies. This is quite natural and if the Canadians hvae anything to sell that the South Americans want she will probably get her share of the trade. But our Northern neighbors should understand that the surest way to share in the advantages of the American commercial alliance is to come in out of the cold and join the United States.

EX-COMMISSIONER TANNER is disposed to think that his removal had a good deal to do with the result of Tuesday's election. This explanation is about on a par with that of the men who think it was the tariff. Governor Foraker was one of Tanner's warmest supporters. He publicly expressed disapproval of the change in the Pension Office. And yet the Governor suffered more than anybody else on Tuesday.

CHAIRMAN ANDREWS, of the Republican State Committee has been visiting National Chairman, Senator Quay, at his Beaver home. The Pennsylvania Chairman would undoubtedly receive a word of warm commendation which he so well deserved, and he may well feel that he fully justified the confidence shown by Quay indicating him for his present position.

IDAHO wants Statehood and she wants it badly, as her recent vote for and against the new State constitution that was proposed for her demonstrated. The proportion of votes in favor of the new constitution was about seventeen to one.

SUNDAY REST.

A Congress was recently held in Paris for the purpose of discussing the question of Sunday rest. At the opening session letters were read from President Harrison and Mr. Gladstone in which both argue for such a day of rest as Sunday, irrespective of any religious significance that may attach to the day. The medical and philosophical aspect of the case was considered as well as the question whether Sunday rest was practicable, especially in those large centers in which work must be carried on uninterruptedly, because every stoppage of the machinery is attended with considerable cost. Mr. Jules Pagny, a Brussels manufacturer, gave it as his opinion that a day of rest could be arranged for in all industries and without a loss. There was, however, considerable opposition to this opinion. The congress finally adopted the following resolutions:

1. Sunday as a day of rest is possible in all industries, but in differing degress. Sunday is the day which best suits employer and employee, as well from the stand-point of the individual as from that of home life. It is best to have the day of rest the same for all as much as possible.

2. When for technical or other reasons it is impossible to take Sunday as a day of rest arrangements must be made to have some other day set apart for the purpose, so that the workingman may have 52 free days in the year; these days to occur at as regular intervals as possible. This rest enables man to render better work in that it refreshes his physical powers.

The congress also recommended that wages be not paid on Saturday or Sunday, but on some other day, as, for instance Friday.

The Catholic Centennial.

The centennial of the hierarchy celebrated by the Catholics at Baltimore yesterday brought together the most notable assemblage of prelates that has ever been grouped on the American Continent. Two Cardinals, upwards of twenty Archbishops, sixty Bishops and upwards of four hundred priests attended the centennial mass. The display was remarkable in many respects. The historical significance of the event is shown in the attendance of distinguished prelates from all parts of the globe. The ceremonies were conducted with unusual splendor; it is referred to as the grandest religious celebration of the nineteenth century, being invested with equal or more importance than the Plenary Council, which was distinctively a gathering of American priests, while the centennial celebration has called together churchmen whose views and utterances have guided the destiny of nations.

The proceedings will be prolonged over five days.

The only circumstance that could lessen the gratification of those who participated in the ceremonies is the realization of the speedy dissolution of Pope LEO XIII., whose physician has forbidden him to hold any more receptions, and is resorting to every means to divert the Pope's mind from the thoughts of the grave.

—It must not be supposed that the lecture of Rev. Dr. Edward McGlynn in the court house next Tuesday night, November 19th, is going to be a tirade against the Catholic church, as the Doctor is not carrying on an anti-Catholic crusade. The Boston Journal of April 24, says: "Some of you, perhaps, thought you would have a great treat (a voice, "we have had it,) in coming here this evening and hearing an ex-Catholic priest denounce the Catholic Church from top to bottom. I have not come here to do anything of the kind." (Applause.) So said Dr. McGlynn in Tremont Temple last evening after he had spoken an hour and a half to an audience filling the floor and first balcony.

God's Phonograph.

BY MRS. T. P. RYNDER.

The fruit of the tree of knowledge
Planted eastward in Eden of old,
Falls ripened by ages of culture
Into amber and glimmering gold.

And we serve to our children wonders
More strange than a sage's dream;
And we walk amid mysteries greater
Than Alladair's camp woke by its gleam.

We have chained for a bondage unending
A giant, whose stride covers space,
By whose magical power we speak cross the seas
As though talking to friends face to face.

A steed we have harnessed, whose swiftness
Out-wonders the legends of yore—
As he travels 'tween Sabbath and Sabbath
A world 'twixt the two oceans roar.

But the chief of all brain-born wonders
Is the marvel I hold in my hand;
Which records every word I have spoken—
Not as one who might write on the sand—

But affixing each tone and inflection,
As it reaches its unerring ear;
And holding it there until called for—
It may be for many a year.

Until some curious eyes after ages
Shall find it—perhaps cast away;
And unlocking, ungrinding its circuit
Shall hear what I utter to-day.

No change in the words resurrected,
None lost or devoured by rust,
Though the voice now dictating be silent—
Consigned by its dust unto dust.

So I think we record every impulse
On the cylander we call soul;
God's hand grinding each revolution,
Each day bringing nearer the goal.

No far-away record shall judge us,
No mis-shapen or faltering pen
Shall write out our soul's condemnation,
Consign us to pleasure or pain.

But God's phonograph deep set within us,
Shall receive on its spotless scroll
Every impress for good or for evil,
That can fasten itself on a soul.

Our Story Teiler.

AN ECHO OF THE WAR.

'Is dis yere de road to Bosting, master?'

It was an ancient negro who asked this afternoon of an Inquirer reporter on the corner of Broad and Arch streets. He was an intensely black negro, with the whitest of teeth. He was the personification of good nature, as he stood, hat in hand, making from time to time respectful obeisances to the reporter.

He was strangely and typically attired, and his feet were enormous in size. His face was kindly and full of honest purpose. His long, bushy wool was snow white.

'Surely, uncle,' interposed the reporter, 'you are not going to walk all the way to Boston?'

'Deed I is, master,' was the answer.

"Where are you from?'

'Ole Virginny.,

'What part?'

'Ise had a little place in Fauquier county sence surrender, till I done heard from Miss Em'ly's gran' chile. Den I does give up, an' hyar I is, 72 years old nex' December fourteenth day, trabbling 'cross de country like de patriarchs did in Bible times when dey was out on a mission o' kindness or to smite an ememy.'

The old negro soon became communicative, and in a neighboring restaurant, where he could eat and refresh himself, he told his story, which, robbed of the homely dialect impossible to reproduce, is as follows:

Long before the war there settled in Nottoway county, Virginia, a certain Thomas Boastwick, who came from Georgia with his young wife and purchased a large plantation near Jenning's ordinary. Among the goods and chattels purchased by the Georgian was Aaron, warranted by his late master as "sound in the limb, of good temper, faithful, honest and industrious." Aaron was the ancient negro who is now tramping wearily across the country to Boston. When "Master Tom" bought him, Aaron was a young man, and for years he held the confidence of his owner, was his friend and counsellor in health, nurse and doctor in sickness.

"Miss Em'ly," quoth Aaron, "dat wos Master Tom's wife, was a mos' lubly lady, gentle as a dove an' as fair as a lily. She had two chilluns—young Master Willie and young Miss Em'ly. Lord bless you master, I nursed dem bofe from de time dey fust ki-ied to the day when dey wos 'lowed to run 'round de ole plantation in short dresses. An' I lubbed dem chillum. Suah, I did, master,'

When war broke out 'young Master Willie' had grown to man's estate and 'young Miss Em'ly' was the belle of Nottoway county. When Virginia called upon her sons to defend the soil of the old Dominion from invading hosts that swarmed down from the Northwest, 'young Master Willie' was among the first to volunteer, and until the battle of Ball's Bluff he passed through the ordeal of shot and shell unscathed. In this hotly contested fight he was badly wounded, and when the Confederates retreated he was left upon the field of battle and became a prisoner. He fell into good hands, for Captain Charles Dairymple of a Massachusetts regiment was captor.

Captain Dalrymple was wounded also and after the battle secured leave of absence. He had formed an attachment to his rebel acquaintance, and reaching home on furlough wrote to him at the Federal prison in Elmira, New York. The Virginian pined in his captivity, and wrote doleful letters The Yankee captain, with a heart full of sympathy, applied to Massachusetts' war Governor, John A. Andrews, and 'Master Willie' was paroled. Out of gratitude to his Yankee friend, the released prisoner accepted the ——invitation to spend a few weeks with him at his Boston home.

The bond of friendship between the two was firmly cemented before the Yankee captive's leave of absence ended, and he went back to his regiment with bright visions of a certain Emily whose praises had been sounded in his ears for days, and toward whose home the armies of the North were marching.

Young master Willie, furnished with a pass, went through the lines and finally reached his old home. He had sworn not to take up arms against the Northmen, but when one October night, Burnside's army made a sudden march upon the enemy's lines, and a scouting party dashed down upon Jenning's ordinary, he buckled on sword and pistol, loaded up his fowling-piece and started out at the head of a hastily organized home guard to repel the invaders. By his side rode black Aaron, and his stout heart never quailed when bullets whistled about him like a shower of hail.

The opposing forces rushed toward each other and nearer. From their rifles and guns belched forth a flame. At last there was a crash, a fierce commingling of gray and blue, shouts, curses, groans of agony, and screams of pain. At last a triumphant rebel yell and the scouting party were driven back with half their number dead.

Aaron was sorely wounded. He bears the scars of that conflict yet on his black body, but weak though he he was, from loss of blood, he began to search for "Master Willie," whom he had seen go down in the thick of the fray. He found him at last, dead, with his white face upturned to the stars and the dew. As he bent over him, tears streaming down his black face, a groan awoke the stillness of the night, and leaving the dead that was past help, he turned to the living so sorely in need of it. Not ten feet from where his young master lay, tossed another form in the blue uniform of the enemy. The negro bent above the wounded man, and the latter's lips formed the single word:

'Water!'

It was brought to him and he drank eagerly. In the meantime several of the other plantation negros had crept through the woods to the late scene of carnage, and now questioned Aaron with chattering teeth and quaking limbs.

He ordered them all back to the plantation for mules and a wagon and sent a verbal message of preparation for the coming of the dead to young Miss Em'ly.

Just as the pale light of the stars was giving way to the stronger light of coming day Miss Em'ly, with tears in her eyes, stood upon the porch of the plantation house and received two parties—one was that of her dead brother, the other that of her wounded Yankie friend, Captain Charles Dalrymple, who had led the scouting party. She was all that was left now of the Bostwicks, for her father and mother had both died early in the war.

With heroic fortitude she performed the last offices for the dead, shed tears of heartfelt sorrow over his grave and then, brave woman as she was, turned her attention to the suffering living. She nursed Captain Dalrymple back to life, although he was a long time recovering, and when Lee surrendered at Appomattox, these two, who had learned to love each other, were married, and Miss Em'ly went to the North to make her future home in Boston.

"Dey didn't forgit Aaron, master," said the old negro, an' 'dough I ain't no scholar, my boy dat's dead an' gone dese two years was, an' ev'ry month I paid my mos' doubful compliments to Miss Em'ly an, her husband' an' dey always answered de letters. Miss Em'ly on'ly had but one chile—a boy. She's dead an' her husband's dead, an' de youngest, 'young Master Willie,' was a man grown an' married two years ago. Now he's dead an' his young wife am left all alone in de world, wid a little baby who's a Master Willie too. Dey's in need, master 'cause dey's monstrous poor, an, libing like no qual'ty people ought to live. De young Miss'y don't dat I know dis, but I do, an' soon's I hearn of her trouble I packed up a snack for rations, sold out my little place in Fauquier, paid my debts, an' here I is mor'n half way dere, bress de good Lawd.

"And what do you propose to do, uncle?" asked the reporter.

"Do! chile? do Why, I'm gwine on to Bosting to hunt up my young missy's gran'-chile de youngest Master Willie, to work for him till my ole body is plumb worn out.'

'Boston is a great city. Do you know where to find them?'

The ancient negro chuckled at this question, and fumbling in his pocket produced a letter, on the back of which was scrawled in rude characters:

'Yung Master Willie—Albion street, Bosting.'

'Dere's de place, master,' he continued earnestly, 'Albion street, Bosting. Dere may a t'ousan, houses dere, but I'll knock at the door an' ax at eb'ry one, an' if I keep on, I'se suah to find young Master Willie!'

JOKING A DIRECTOR.

HOW A FUN-LOVING RAILROAD EMPLOYEE LOST A GOOD JOB.

The station agent at Benham was a joker from way back and it was a cold week when he couldn't spring something new on the boys, says the New York Sun. It was a railroad junction, and more or less drummers, advance agents, and other men who had cut their eye teeth were always to be found there waiting for a train. One of Dick's best guys proved his ruin. With the help of his wife he rigged up a lay figure to represent a fashionable young lady, and at a proper time he would seat her on a baggage truck in a shady spot on the depot platform. In the semi-darkness the figure was perfect. One hand held a parasol and the other pressed a handkerchief to her face, as if she were in great distress. A wire was attached to her back and was conducted into the ticket office, and at a given moment Dick could cause the figure to turn a back somersault over the truck by a pull of the wire.

Many and many a man got sold on that young lady, and it had got to be an old story when a "fresh" came along one evening and the boys gave Dick the tip. He set his trap and waited for results. On the same train with the "fresh" came a director of Dick's road—a hefty old chap about fifty years old. He was not known and had no occasion to introduce himself. Somehow or other the "fresh" refused to bite but the director did. Getting uneasy after waiting awhile, he began walking the platform, and bye and bye his gaze fell upon the female in the shadow of the freight house. He advanced rather cautiously and as he came up he lifted his hat and saluted:

"Ahem! Good evening!"

There was no response and he walked on a few feet, and turned and retraced his steps.

"Ahem! Beg pardon, but are you in trouble?" he asked.

She did not reply and he walked away again and returned to say:

"If you are in trouble and need a friend let me know."

She was still dumb, and he did not know what to make of it. After a moment he advanced and touched her on the shoulder, and had begun to remark that she would find in him a friend, when a wire was pulled and she tipped backward over the truck.

The good man rushed to her assistance, and it was not until he had her in his arms that he discovered the sell. At about the same moment there were chuckles and guffaws and titters from thirty or forty people who were "on," and the director realized the put-up job. He hadn't a word to say, but he followed that wire to the window, satisfied himself as to who worked it, and early next morning Dick got the bounce and had to go clear to California to strike another job.

Some Curious Beliefs.

Pittsburgh Dispatch.

The ancients, having fully satisfied themselves as to the different planets that affected the individuality of infants, it was an easy and natural step to establish a basis whereby they could foretell in general terms what manner of person the child would grow up into, basing their forecasts on the relative position of planets and stars at the time of, or immediately preceding birth. There was no mere guess-work about these matters. The ancients saw that Saturn, by reason of its extreme cold, and Mars, owing to great dryness, were very malignant; that Jupiter and Venus, being temperate, were very favorable in their influences, and the sun more so. Mercury, being of an indifferent nature, had more varying influences. The influences of the moon were still more diversified. When at its full it promised good fortune; but when it was horned the ancients looked upon it as so malignant that a child born at such a time had very little hope of living. So convinced were they on this point that they were apt to regard care bestowed on an infant born while the moon was horned as so much time and trouble wasted.

It is needless to ask that a practical adoption of this theory greatly increased the mortality of the unfortunate little creatures, and served to still further convince the theorists of the malignant influence of a horned moon. Various peculiar customs arose out of this belief. Something had to be done to propitiate the evil genius who presided over the moon when horned and turning some article of clothing was the propitiation at one time favored. A relic of this custom survived at the time. "Unheard of Curiosities" was written (1650), when "good-intentioned folk thought to avert ill from those unhappy infants born at the time by turning over the money in their pockets." It may be added that even now in many parts of the world young people "turn their money," if they have any, on the first appearance of a new moon. There are many other local customs relating to the moon which may be said to have their origin in astrological superstitions.

SHADOW BUFF.

A LOCAL GAME THAT IS AS FUNNY AS BLINDMAN'S BUFF.

The game of shadow buff differs very materially from blindman's buff, but it is equally as amusing. A large piece of white linen should be fastened neatly up at one end of a room so that it hangs smoothly. Buff (not blinded) seats himself on a low stool, with his face to the linen, and a table, on which is a lighted candle, should be placed about four or five feet behind him and the rest of the lights in the room extinguished. Buffy's playfellows next pass in succession between the candle and him, distorting their features in as grotesque a manner as possible—hopping, limping and performing various odd antics, so as to make their shadows very unlike their usual looks. Buffy must then try to guess to whom the shadows belong, and if he guesses correctly the person whose shadow he recognizes takes his place. Buff is allowed only one guess for each person, and must not turn his head either to the right or left to see who passes.

Process of Removing Vermin or Scales From Plants.

A novel process, by Edwin P. Fowler of National City, California, consists in dislodging the vermin by means of a sand blast.

The object of the invention is to remove and eventually destroy vermin which are liable to cause injury to vines or other plants of a similar nature and also to remove growths—such as those known by the term "scale"—which appear in the form of white protuberances formed of fibrous cotton-like matter and containing vermin, and which destroy yearly entire groves of lemon and orange trees in Florida, South California, and other tropical States.

In carrying out the invention, a fan blower of any suitable construction, or any other apparatus capable of creating an artificial current of air, is employed. The artificial current of air thus created is directed against the tree or other plant, and in its transit from the fan blower to the plant the current of air is charged with sand.

Of course the force of the artificial air current must be carefully gauged, so that the the sand which is projected by the same against the trees or plants will not destroy the plants together with the vermin of scale, and the sand must be sifted, so that no coarse particles or stones remain mixed with it. If the force of the air current is properly limited, according to the nature of the plants under treatment, the scale or vermin can be removed without injuring the trees or plants.

In some cases it is desirable that the artificial current of air shall be heated, and for this purpose there is combined with the fan blower or other apparatus a suitable heater. It may also be desirable in certain contingencies that the sand which is used for charging the artificial air current shall be hot, and for the purpose of heating the sand before introducing it into the air current, any suitable heating apparatus may be used.

General Mahone Arrested.

RICHMOND, Va., November 5,—A crowd went to General Mahone's house in Petersburg to-night to ridicule him with a pyrotechnic display. He made his appearance with a shot gun and fired into the crowd in the yard, wounding Herbert Harrison in the thigh. The General was arrested and taken to jail but afterwards bailed. He is now at home. The excitement has subsided.

INTERVIEWING GEN. SHERMAN.

A Washington Correspondent Relates a Typical Experience.

"I have met some pretty tough subjects to interview," said a prominent Washington correspondent, but the hardest man I ever met was Gen. Sherman. In the summer of 1881, when Garfield was dying, Gen. Sherman was stopping in a Western city where I was a reporter. I was ordered to get a column interview with him at least. I found the General in his room, and asked: "What is the object of your visit here, General, at this time!

"I don't know as that is any of your business.'

"'Where do you go to from here, General'

"'About my business, sir.'

"'What is your opinion of the medical treatment to which President Garfield is being subjected?'

"'If you wish to know anything on that point, write to Dr. Bliss; I am not a medical expert.'

"And so the interview continued. I should have withdrawn at a very early stage had I not observed a merry twinkle in the old warrior's eyes, while I also noticed that his companions were nearly suffocating in their attempts to control their mirthful feelings. I saw then that the General was trying to bluff me and I was determined not to be bluffed. The next day the paper came out with the interview just as it occoured and it created a good deal of amusement."

"Veni, Vidi, Vici".

The Exposition is closed until October next. We saw it; it was great, being in its infancy, but we saw enough to convince ourselves of the fact that enterprise, such as displayed there, should not be passed by without some comment. But we still wonder why it was that only one whole-sale liquor house was so boldly represented. You could see its pyramid of bottles from any part of the great building. It was the prettiest display there. Max Klein has proved to the public that he wants to be seen. CURIOUS EXPERIMENT.

A Chicken's Breastbone Converted Into a Woman's Nose.

Dr. F R Tetamore, assistant surgeon of the Fourteenth Regiment, and who is curator in the Long Island College Hospital, recently performed a curious operation in the nature of an experiment. Disease had deprived Mrs. C Hoffman, of 39 Maujer street, Brooklyn, of the bone that formed the bridge of her nose. A cavity marked at its lower extremity by the shrunken nostrils supplied the place of the once prominent nose.

Dr. Tetamore raised the sunken skin that once covered the woman's nose and divided it lengthwise. From a live chicken the surgeon removed the breast bone, leaving on the tender cartilegino us fillament and periosteum. These latter he sewed to the flesh of the nose, and over the bone he drew a portion of the periosteum, cut from the forehead of the woman. The breast bone of the fowl furnished the nose. Two months will show the result of the experiment, Dr. Tetamore says.

The Chamber of Torture.

Is the apartment to which the unhappy sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism is confined. If, ere the crisis of pain is reached, that fine preventive, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is used by persons of a rheumatic tendency, much unnecessary suffering is avoided. Nervines, anodynes and sedatives, while having none but a specific effect, are yet very desirable at times. Yet can they produce no lasting effect upon rheumatism, because they have no power to eliminate from the blood the rheumatic virus. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters does this, and checks at the outset a disease which, if allowed to gain headway, it is next to impossible to dislodge or to do more than relieve. Rheumatism, it should be remembered, is a disease with a fatal tendency from its proneness to attack the heart. A resort to the Bitters should therefore, be prompt. Dyspepsia, kidney complaint, and malaria are relieved by it.

A CLEVER FORGERY.

Depositing Money to his Debtor's Credit in Order to Get out More.

Some years ago a merchant engaged a broker to dispose of some stock to meet an urgent demand for ready cash. The stock was sold, but the owner had considerable difficulty in getting the sale proceeds from the broker. At last driven to desperation the merchant threatened proceedings. The broker, after making a mental calculation, sat down and drew a check for the amount realized on account of the stock, less 2 per cent, broker's commission, and handed it to the merchant with many apologies for the delay. After this both parted good friends. This occurred in the early morning and as the merchant wanted the money urgently, he presented the check at the bank without delay. Guess his astonishment when the check was handed back to him with the remark "Insufficient." The merchant was hurrying away from the bank when he met Reid, the detective, coming up the stairs. He stopped the latter and related how he had been "sold" by the broker.

'How much short of the amount of your check stands to the credit of the broker at the bank?' inquired the officer;

'I never asked,' replied the merchant.

'Very good,' said Reid; 'go back and ascertain.'

The merchant did so and soon returned with the reply, 'Two hundred rupees.'

'And the check is for five thousand?'

'Yes,' was the reply.

'Look here,' said Reid, 'there are half a dozen writs against the broker and he has only given you this check, knowing it would not be paid in order to gain time. He will draw the money himself before the day is out, and probably bolt you from his creditors.'

'What is to be done?' exclaimed the merchant in blank despair.

'Just this,' said Reid, as cool as a cucumber; 'take a pencil and a piece of paper, and write in a hurried scrawl as I dictate: 'To the Secretary of the—— Bank—Dear Sir: I have just accidentally discovered that I have drawn a check in favor of——and that my credit at the bank falls short by Rs 200. I have sent this sum per bearer to prevent disappointment should the check be presented during the day.' Now,' said Reid as the merchant finished the note, 'the broker's initials.'

The merchant looked up in astonishment.

'Never mind,' said the officer, 'it's no offence to pay money into the bank to a man's credit, though it would be to draw money out under a forged document.'

This advice overcame the merchant's scruples, and the broker's initials were attached to the letter and the money despatched to the bank. It was paid in without a question being asked. The check was afterward presented and paid in full.

On going down the stairs the merchant met his friend the broker coming up. The latter, on recognizing the former, stopped suddenly and exclaimed: 'Good God! I have forgotten my bank book?' He then turned on his heel, hurried from the bank, and entering a ticca gharry at the door drove away. He had come to draw from the bank the balance of his credit, but seeing the man he had intended to cheat, he was afraid to encounter him, never thinking for a moment that the intended dupe had then in his pocket every piece the broker had to his credit. Of course the merchant lost 200 rupees in the transaction, but, as Reid explained, it was better to lose 200 than 5,000.

—A railroad man says there is no reason for persons getting caught in frogs or between parallel rails if they will follow the simple rules of all railroaders. That is to step over every rail and frog, and never step on them when crossing. If you care to watch the switchmen or others, should you happen to be in a yard, you will see that they never step on the rails or frogs, but always over them. It is the invariable rule among railroad men, and if the people would follow it there would be no more accidents from getting caught on frogs.

A Scrap of Paper Saves Her Life.

It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable and could live only a short time; she weighed less than seventy pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a sample bottle; it helped her, she bought a large bottle, it helped her more, bought another and grew better fast, continued its use and is now strong, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds. TO ADVERTISERS!

HOW TO GET THE MOST SERVICE FOR THE MONEY!

The Advertiser who would be willing to pay twenty-five cents for every family who could be "educated" up to the value of his goods would thus devote $3,000,000 to educate the 12,000,000 families which make up the 60,000,000 of the United States. This sum would do the business thoroughly in a year, for it is sufficient to pay for the insertion of a full column in every issue of every publication, and for resetting the matter, making it new in every issue of each separate publication. We will receive and execute the contract.

$5,000 One of the most successful Advertisers we ever had always ordered his advertisements in this way, "Get the best service you can for me for $5,000," leaving every detail to us. We were thus enabled to say to a Publisher, if you put this in at a large reduction from your rate it will be no criterion for further transactions. It was a surprise to find ourselves so often able to contract for the insertion of that particular advertisement at half rates, in papers which would not permit us to OFFER their columns at a penny's deviation from a printed schedule. The advertising rates of one New York paper are double those of another which has twice the circulation of the first. Similar discrepancies are not uncommon. The advertisement intrusted to us to be placed in accordance with our judgment often does double service for half the money. A dollar for twenty-five cents.

$1,000 If we are given authority to insert advertisements to a limited amount, in such mediums as ofier inducements which seem to us specially favorable, we shall not abuse the confidence reposed in us, and shall render statements of whatever is done (if anything) from day to day. When TRUSTED with the placing of an advertisement, we are put upon honor, and are bound in honor to give the best service possible for the money to be used.

$500 Leading Newspapers, especially the leading Agricultural Newspapers, frequently issue large special editions (of twenty, fifty, a hundred, or even five hundred thousand copies,) and solicit advertisement orders from us on terms which would often be accepted by our patrons if there was time to invite attention to the matter; but the question must generally be decided before there would be time to write and receive a reply, and often the case cannot be fully stated within the limits of a letter.

$250 Prepare a small advertisement and send with check for $250, or any other sum. The practice of asking the Agent to name his papers in advance compels him to name such as are well known, otherwise there is reason to suspect that his judgment is biased;—and the best papers do not like to have their rates quoted below their schedule.

$100 The advertiser who sends his advertisements asking for the best service possible for one hundred dollars, will often get from five to fifty per cent more service for his money, than he would had he required us to tell him in advance exactly what service we would promise; for when an estimate has been given its plan and specifications must, in a general way at least, control the advertising to be done: It ties the Agent's hands and prevents his giving his patrons TO-DAY a better service than he could have promised yesterday, because yesterday the opportunity had not presented itself: to-morrow it may have passed! Some publications are used more economically on contracts for a single issue; in others insertion for a month may be had as cheaply as for a single week but in furnishing an estimate in advance, if the Agent attempts to go into details, his correspondence becomes voluminous and the advertiser confused.

$50. If you are in the habit of occasionally inserting a small advertisement in a few papers, investing a few dollars and carefully noting the result; we desire you to make trial of our Advertising Bureau, sending us the advertisement and the money, leaving the selection of the papers to us, and judging of the service rendered by results rather than by names, circulation claims or prices. To make up careful estimates calls for much work. It don't pay to make them indiscriminately for every applicant. If such estimates as are asked for were always given the Advertiser who wished to expend $50 would frequently find himself in possession of a scheme which it would cost $500 or possibly $5,000 to carry out.

$10. We devote all necessary care to placing small orders for Advertising:—even the smallest! Time is saved by sending check with the order. Often the Advertiser is not possessed of sufficient information on the subject to enable him to judge of the merits of an estimate for advertising, and he decides by the footings of the figures whether he will or will not do the work. Yet the estimate binds the Agent and makes it improper for him to make any variation in its specifications, however much his judgment may point to material changes which ought to be made. This is specially liable to be the case when the order comes a considerable time after the estimate was made.

THE CONGRESS ENDED.

Concluding Sessions of the Catholic Gathering in Baltimore.

MERCIER PRAISES CARROLL

An Able Eulogy from the Canadian Premier—Archbishop Gross—The Delegates Go to Washington to Attend the University Dedication.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 13.—The Catholic congress was called to order at 10:30. Bishop La Fleeck, of Canada, said the prayer. M. D. Fansler, of Indiana, moved to appoint a committee to consider the expediency of holding state conventions of Catholics annually. Referred.

Hon. Honore Mercier, prime minister of Quebec, was introduced and received with great applause. He said: We have assembled to honor a great prelate. He regarded the honor paid him in being invited to say a few words as an honor intended for the country from which he came, and especially to the province of Quebec, which he represented.

It would not, therefore, seem strange that, appearing as he did for a great province in Canada, he should regard the career of Archbishop Carroll in his relations to the state rather than the church. Carroll was a great statesman. The father of this country had no greater ally than Carroll. Had Washington and Franklin and Carroll failed in their work it would have been a calamity to America and humanity.

In the glorious work Carroll had no small share. He was broad and expansive. Your Declaration of Independence was a revelation to mankind, acknowledging the rights it proclaimed, and came from God; it laid down the principles on which the greatest amount of liberty could be guaranteed. Perhaps no man did more for America than Franklin, and he was Carroll's friend; and who can tell how much of Carroll's spirit Franklin imbibed?

Carroll's Great Service to the Country.

To members of the Roman church it was a dispensation of Providence that Carroll did such good service for his country, and that his influence was commensurate with his services, because they were days of religious persecution. The statutes of every country yet contained laws directed against the liberty of worship. America was not yet free from these prejudices, and before Carroll's influence had been felt the congress of Philadelphia protested against the Quebec act, passed in England, granting freedom of worship to Catholics of Canada. This impudent protest was not without its effect upon the struggle for American independence.

RT. REV. W. H. GROSS, D.D.

But the mistake was nobly repaired. When the time came to affirm true principles, the largest liberty was proclaimed, and today we see in your republic the magnificent spectacle of sincere men, differing in religious belief, united as brethren in their love of country and in devotion to the principles of civil and religious liberty.

Speaking of education, the orator said that under no form of government are moral and intellectual training more necessary than in a republic.

No grander service could be rendered, therefore, to your country than the establishing of a grand Catholic university; no greater monument could be erected to the memory of Carroll. In the city, hallowed by the name of Washington, the capital of the freest people on earth, the Roman Catholic church makes to your country the gift of a great university, where your people will learn the grand lesson that loyalty to God means loyalty to the state.

The Jesuit Act.

We in Quebec are determined to be guided in public matters by justice. Thus, when the Protestant minority of lower Canada demanded the right of educating their children in their own schools, the French Canadians and Roman Catholics hesitated not one moment to grant to the Protestant minority their separate schools. In the same spirit, with no intention of undue favoritism, but for justice' sake, we gave back to the Roman church through the Jesuits the property of which they had been despoiled by the same George III who would have despoiled your fathers of their liberties and rights.

The speaker hoped that the university at Washington would welcome Canadian students to it, and that the two peoples might find a still closer bond of union, in seeing their children studying the same sciences, in the same halls, under the same masters, for the love of God and country.

Mr. Mercier closed with quoting Longfellow's poem as applicable to your country as well as to your university and their union: "Sail on, O Union, strong and great," etc.

Mr. Mercier was applauded and cheered to the echo.

A Drummer's Smart Game.

A short time ago a drummer from abroad called at a Bangor livery stable and wanted a double team for a ten day's trip into the country, and the stableman refused to let him have one on the ground that he was a stranger. There was much discusson over the matter, and finally the drummer said:

"What is your team worth?"

"Four hundred and fifty dollars," was the answer.

"If I pay you that sum for it will you buy it back again when I return?" asked the customer, and upon receiving an affirmative reply, he promptly put up the cash. Ten days later he returned and, driving into the stable, he alighted and entered the office, saying, "Well, here is your team, and now I want my money back."

The sum was passed to him, and he turned and was leaving the place, when the liveryman called out, "Look here, aren't you going to settle for that team?"

"For what team?" asked the drummer in a surprised tone.

"For the one you just brought back."

"Well, now," drawled the drummer, "you aren't fool enough to think that I would pay anybody for the use of my own property, are you?" and he shook the dust of the place from his feet.—Bangor Commercial.

If a boy and a half eat a green apple and a half in a minute and a half, how will he feel in an hour and a half.

For simply trying to get ahead in the world, a poor little boy was sent to prison. He stole a head of cabbage.

The sublimest state of misery is endured only by a man with a stiffly starched vest, a collar that won't stay buttoned behind, a pair of tight shoes, and a blackberry seed between his front teeth.

"My dear Mrs. Croesus, may I not put your name down for tickets for Professor Pundit's course of lectures on Buadhism?" Mrs. C.—"Oh, by all means! You know how passionately fond I am of flowers!"

The little boy was on his knees in his little night-dress saying his prayers, and his little siste could not resist the temptation to tickle the soles of his feet. He stood it as long as he could, and then he said: "Please God, excuse me while I knock the stuffing out of Nellie.'

Lecturer—"All statistics prove that the blonde women are more difficult to get along with than the brunettes." Astonished man in the audience (starting up)—"Are you certain of that?" Professor—"It is a fact." Astonished Man—"Then I believe my wife's black hair is dyed."

MR. LEE. "Why, Addie, you needn't cry about it! I only said Mrs. Allen was a very well-informed woman, and I wished you would follow her example."

MRS. LEE. "Yes, and last week you said you wished I could manage to look as stylish as Mrs. Allen,—and she makes all her own clothes. But she has what I haven't."

MR. LEE. "What is that?"

MRS. LEE. "Well, she gets all of her information from the Magazine they take. I admit that she knows all that is going on, and is bright and entertaining in conversation; but I could do as well as she does if I had the same source of information. She lent me the last number of her Magazine lately, and I learned more in one hour's reading, about various social matters and the topics of the day, than I would pick up in a month by my occasional chats with friends. It certainly covers every topic of interest, from the news of the day down to the details of housekeeping; and everything is so beautifully illustrated, too. Every time Mamie goes over to the Aliens' she comes back and teases me to get you to take Demorest's Family Magazine, as the stories are so good. Even the boys watch for it every month, as a place is found for them also in its pages; and Mr. Allen swears by it. It is really wonderful how it suits every member of the family!"

MR. LEE. "Well, perhaps I had better send for a Specimen Copy; for, if it is anything like what you say it is, it will amuse and instruct the whole of us."

MRS. LEE. "I see that W. Jennings Demorest, the publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York, is offering to send a Specimen Copy for 10 cents, so we can't lose anything, as each number contains a 'Pattern Order' entitling the holder to any pattern she may choose, and in any size—which alone makes each copy worth 30 cents; and I just want a jacket pattern like Mrs. Allen's. The subscription price is only $2.00 a year; and I must say I can't see how they can publish so elegant a Magazine for so little money."

A Funny World.

This is a sort of topsp-turvey world. No one seems to be satisfied. One man is struggling to get justice and another is flying from it.

One man is saving up to buy a house, and another is tryinš to sell his dwelling for less than it cost, to get rid of it.

One man is spending all the money he can earn in taking a girl to the theatre and sending her flowers, in the hope that he may eventually make her his wife, and his neighbor is spending all the gold he has saved to get a divorce.

One man is ordered to eat eggs because they are nutritious, and another is cautioned to leave them alone because they produce bile.

One man escapes all the diseases that flesh is heir to and is killed on a railroad; another man goes through half a dozen wars without a scratch and then dies of the whooping cough.

—Of the Irish National Concert Company, which will appear in the Court House in this place on November 26th, the Boston Herald of October 28, says: Last evening a concert was given in the Boston Theatre in aid of the Home for Destitute Catholic Children by the Irish National Concert Company. The selections were by no means confined to Irish melodies, the tenor, Mr. William Foxon, giving two numbers from Handel, his "Waft Ye, Angels," being far ahead musically of anything in the programme. It was all well received, and every artist was encored—some of them many times.

—Wilmer L Malin, Superintendent of the telephone exchange in this place, has gone to York county to hunt and shoot quail. If the weather will permit he will ship a car load to Bellefonte soon.

If some enterprising fellow would now corner the market on Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup he could make his fortune. Beware of frauds.

"For I am declined into the vale of years," she said a little sadly, but indeed I don't much mind it since I can get Salvation Oil for 25 cents.

to be called handsome, especially the young ladies. But that is simply impossible as long as their face is covered with pimples, blotches and sores. But wait, there is no need of this; one or two bottles of Sulphur Bitters will remove all such disfigurations, and make your face fair and rosy.—Fannie Bell, Ekitress.

TREASURER HART'S FUNERAL.

Buried with State and Military Honors.

Special to the DAILY NEWS.

HARRISBURG, PA., Nov. 12, 1889.

This city is bedecked in mourning today in token of the funeral ceremonies attendant upon the burial of late Treasurer, Hon. William B Hart. Upon the capitol a flag flies at half-mast, and the imposing white pillars of the main building are heavily draped in the habiliaments of mourning, as is also the entrance to the trust building.

The funeral ceremonies were begun at his late residence, No. 1006 North Third street, promptly at 10 o'clock, at which the relatives and those who knew the dead man most intimately were invited. The service here was conducted by Rev. George B Stewart, pastor of the Market Square Presbyterian church. The services were very solemn and impressive, and frequent allusions to good deeds in the life of the dead man were made. Upon conclusion of the ceremonies at the house the body was removed to the Capitol rotunda, where it lay in State from 11 to 1 o'clock, at which hour Rev. Dr. Chambers, of the Pine street Presbyterian church, delivered the address.

Capt. Thomas F Maloney, in command of the City Grays (Company D, Eighth Regiment, N. G P.) had charge of the military arrangements. The City Grays, Governor's Troop, Gobin Guards, of Carlisle, the Wrightsville company and the City Gray's Cadets participated in the funeral.

Mr. Lane Hart, the only son of the lamented official, was at Yale College when his father died, and only arrived home on Saturday afternoon.

Table Talk.

TABLE TALK for November is on hand to cheer our body,—and our mind, too, for that matter—with its pleasing presence. We notice among the contents the first of a series of papers by Mrs. Rorer, which will prove of great value to "all whom it may concern," and it certainly does concern a great many families to know "How Best to Live on $500 a Year," which is the burden that Mrs. Rorer has taken upon her shoulders to explain. She has proved herself to be so thoroughly practical in all that pertains to the management of the table, that those of limited purse who have need to follow her instructions will no doubt, profit by them. We all know the fact that many families exist on $500 a year; but, if Mrs. Rorer can really show how that existence can be combined with some of life's comforts on such a limited sum, a considerable portion of the world will owe her a very large amount of gratitude. The current number of TABLE TALK is filled with its usual amount of readable matter and well sustains the reputation and popularity the magazine has earned. It is published by the TABLE TALK PUBLISHING CO., 402, 404 & 406 Race Steet, Philadelphia. $1.00 a year; single copies, 10c.

A Church Fair.

A fair will be held under the aupices of the ladies of the Presbyterian church during the first week in December. These fairs are no novelty and it is a well-known fact that all that is beautiful, ornamental and useful will be there represented. It will be just the opportunity for Bellefonters to purchase Christmas presents. Young men and aged, fair maid and handsome matron are invited to call around at that time and if the ladies who will have the fair in charge can't show you something so handsome that you cannot resist buying it, it will be just because you have no eye for the beautiful.

Lecture at State College.

On Thursday evening, November 20th. Hon. B K Bruce, Ex-Senator from Mississippi, will lecture in the chapel of the Pennsylvania State College. The subject of the lecture, which will be under the auspices of the Free Lance, will be "The Race Problem." Mr. Bruce is well known in political life and has had a remarkable career. Hon. J Donald Cameron, U S Senator from this State, pays Mr. Bruce this tribute: "I served with Hon. B K Bruce in the United States Senate for several years, and know him to be a gentleman of high character, and a public speaker of well-deserved reputation."

The Groe Homestead Burned:

A telephone message to the Daily Journal this morning from Kylertown states that on Saturday evening about 7 o'clock, the house and barn of Mrs. Ellen Groe, widow of the late Captain Henry Groe, who was killed by the cars near this place several weeks ago, took fire in some mysterious manner and before assistance could be rendered were totally destroyed. The loss will be $5,000, on which it is said, there is no insurance, the policy having recently expired. The fire is thought to have been the work of an incendiary.—Monday's Philipsburg Journal.

—The following item taken from an exchange is about as correct a summing up of the subject as it is possible to make, and it will not hurt anyone to read it and reflect: "No paper can be published without home patronage, and every man is interested in keeping up a home paper. If a railroad or factory is wanted, the newspapers are expected to work for it. If a public meeting is wanted for any purpose, the newspaper is called upon for a free notice. If any of the societies have a supper or a reception of any kind, the newspaper is expected to give the necessary notice. The newspapers must puff the schools and everything else to advance the interests of the business of the place, and then give them a handsome notice when they pass away. And yet some of them do nothing to keep up a home paper."

—One of the latest innovations that has this year been introduced into Bellefonte society is of a character that portrays considerable lack of moral courage in the young men or else is indicative of a scarcity in the market of eligible parti's. A few evenings since at one of the prominent houses in Bellefonte a party was held at which all present were ladies, although to a looker-on it appeared as if there were as many gentlemen present as there were ladies. But from one in the secret the following explanation was derived: Invitations are only issued to the young ladies. Half of the number bedeck themselves in male attire and assume the duties of escorts to the other half. While at the party dancing and all other customary amusements are indulged in until the wee sma' hours. This now promises to be the rage this winter in this place as two more are known to be on the tapis to occur in the near future. Now can't the young men turn the tables and hold their own parties, like as to the other, you know.

In the Y. M. C. A.

The week of prayer in the Y. M. C. A. has started out very ominously, indeed. On Sunday a large gathering of sixty young men attended the meeting, which proved exceedingly interesting. The Young Men's orchestra furnished the music for the occasion. Monday evening about thirty young men were present at the half hour meeting, and it is the earnest desire that the meetings every night this week will be largely attended.

On Wednesday evening a union prayer meeting will be held, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., in the Methodist church at 8 o'clock. Let every one that possibly can attend that meeting be present. It will be an important and interesting service.

—Dr. E. S. Dorworth's new house on High street is a model in every respect. Beautifully finished and handsomely furnished it is the very picture of comfort and elegance. But the one thing to which the Doctor lays claim as his own invention is the location of the furnace in the cellar, which is so walled in yet, conveniently arranged, that the heat from it does not penetrate throughout the entire cellar but is confined to its specified limit.

—Last Saturday in and around Huntingdon seemed to be a very unlcky day. Grant M. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla 100 Doses One Dollar

The Chief Reason for the great success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is found in the article itself. It is merit that wins, and the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla actually accomplishes what is claimed for it, is what has given to this medicine a popularity and sale greater than that of any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier before the public.

Merit Wins

They have a curious but very practical way of treating drunkards in Norway, and if the London correspondent of the American Practitioner and News speaks with good authority the Norwegian plan is worth trial in America. In Sweden or Norway an habitual drunkard is liable to imprisonment. From the day the confined drunkard is incarcerated, no nourishment is served to him or her but bread or wine. The bread, however, it should be said, cannot be eaten apart from the wine, but is steeped in a bowl of it, and left to soak thus an hour or more before the meal is served to the delinquent. The first day the habitual toper takes his food in this shape without the slightest repugenance; the second day he finds it less agreeable to his palate and very quickly he evinces a positive aversion to it. Generally, the doctor states eight or ten days of this regimen is more than sufficient to make a man loathe the very sight of wine, and even refuse the prison dish set before him. This manner of curing drunken habits is said to succeed almost without exception, and men or women who have undergone the treatment not only rarely return to their evil ways, but from sheer disgust they frequently become total abstainers afterward.

EXAMINE BEFORE YOU BUY.

WHEN in a grocer's store you stand
And cakes of IVORY SOAP demand,
Be careful not to be misled
And imitations take instead,
For dealers oft will praises sing
Of that which may more profit bring.
Let not your senses clouded be
Because a snowy cake you see,
For villainy is not confined
To darkest colors, bear in mind,
And oft the sham is not remote
From fairest face or whitest coat.
Examine well with careful eye
The cake until the name you spy,
And always thus be well assured
That IVORY SOAP you have procured;
And should a lingering doubt remain,
'Twill vanish like the darkest stain,
When in the tub on washing day
That cake of soap is brought in play.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Scrofula in Children.

The following is taken from a letter written under date of July 1, 1889, by Mrs. Ruth Berkley, a most charitable and Christian lady, of Salina, Kan.: "In the early part of 1887 scrofula appeared on the head of my little grandchild, then only eighteen months old. Shortly after breaking out it spread rapidly all over her body. The scabs on the sores would peal off on the slightest touch, and the odor that would arise would make the atmosphere of the room sickening and unbearable. The disease next attacked the eyes and we feared she would lose her sight. Eminent physicians from the surrounding country were consulted, but could do nothing to relieve the little innocent, and gave it as their opinion, 'that the case was hopeless and impossible to save the child's eyesight.' It was then that we decided to try Swift's Specific (S S S.) That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. For more than a year past she has been as healthy as any child in the land.'

Cured His Little Boy.

My little boy had impurities of the blood that were of a scrofulous nature, which resulted in the breaking out of an abcess on the hip. I gave him Swift's Specific (S S S.) It purified his blood and restored his health. As a blood purifier it certainly has no equal.

The collision threw him back on the stone pavement striking the back of his head with terrific force. The boy was knocked insensible. He was carried to Dr. Hibler's where consciousness was restored and he was then taken home, and at this writing has almost entirely recovered the shock.

The Best Advertising.

The most efficient advertising in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla is that which comes from the medicine itself. That is those who are cured by it, speak to friends suffering similarly who in turn derive benefit and urge others to try this successful medicine. Thus the circle of its popularity is widening from this cause alone and more and more are becoming enthusiastic in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla as it actually demonstrates its absolute merit. All that is asked for Hood's Sarsaparilla is that it be given a fair trial. If you need a good blood purifier, or building up medicine try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

A TICKET AGENT TAKEN DOWN.

New York Sun.

One of the ticket agents of the Michigan Central Railroad, at a certain town in Canada, was an airy, independent young man who began work with the idea that he ran the whole line. "The boys" had numerous complaints against him, and more than once he would have caught it on the ear had he not been fenced in where he could not be got at. One evening five or six of us happened to meet there as we came in on cross roads, and we soon got on to the fact that the general manager and two or three other officials of the road were in the ticket office. We laid our heads together and put up a job. We all had 1,000 tickets, but each of the six went to the window in turn and bought a ticket for the nearest station east or west. When we all had been served the first went back to the window and said:

"Young man, I think you made a mistake"

"I guess not."

I got a ticket to C——. That is 30 cents. I gave you a dollar and you gave me 92 cents back."

"Humh! That's funny!" muttered the young man as he took in the change and corrected the alleged error.

Then the second went up and said: "Young man I don't want to beat this railroad. I bought a ticket to R——, which is 25 cents, gave you half a dollar, and you handed me 60 cents."

"I did, eh?" querred the agent, as he finished up and took the change.

Then the third, fourth, fifth and sixth man went up with a similar story. The big officials were taking it all in, and they got very nervous. The young man was whiter than chalk at the end of it, and he was not wrong in believing that he was doomed. Next day he was replaced, and I learned a few weeks later that he had quit running a railroad and gone into a woolen mill. It cost each of us a small sum out of our own pockets to work the man, but it was pro bono publica, and worth double the amount."

—A special from Houtzdale to the Altoona Tribune says: "A project is on foot to organize a company for the purpose of testing the extent and quality of the second vein of coal in this vicinity, the vein underlying the mines from which is now obtained the celebrated Mosbannon vein. It is understood that the Houtz heirs, who own the land, have made a proposition to give any person making the investment all the output of the first year, and thereafter 2 cents a ton on all the coal mined from the second vein. It is the proposition that has led to the talk of organizing a company. The cost, it is stated, will be between $15,000 and $20,000. It was also rumored on the street to-day that the Berwind-White coal company would make the tests on the terms proposed by the Houtz heirs. Should the tests be made and the coal be found of good quality and workable, a long prosperous future for Houtzdale would be assured."

DEATH IN THE DRIFTS.

The New Mexican Blizzard Has Wiped Out Whole Herds.

CORPSES UNDER THE SNOW.

Five Cowboys and Two Mexican Herders Known to Have Been Frozen—20,000 Sheep and Thousands of Cattle Lost—Trains Storm Bound.

CLAYTON, N. M., Nov. 9.—Unless the snow storm, which has been raging for eight days, soon comes to an end, next summer will show a country covered with the dead bodies of animals as thickly as was the old Santa Fe trail in the '60's. The depth of snow is not less than twenty-six inches on the level, and in many places it has drifted seven feet high.

When the storm struck this section seven large herds of cattle, each numbering from 400 to 2,000, were being held near this place, awaiting shipment to eastern markets. The rain of a week ago Wednesday was followed Thursday morning by blizzards of snow and sleet, which sent the herds in a southerly direction.

Awful Experiences in the Storm.

In vain did the cowboys try to check the march of the herds. On they went through the increasing storm, until, finding it utterly impossible to hold the cattle, the boys rode aside and let them pass. Nearly dead, the men rode their exhausted horses into canyons or partially sheltered places, where they passed many hours in misery without food or fire.

Two cowboys drifted into a canyon, where they managed to light a fire. During the second night one of their horses died from cold, and, having nothing to eat, the men cut pieces of flesh from the dead animal, which they warmed and ate. After remaining there sixty hours they started out, and, after much suffering and hardship from their weakened condition, managed to reach a ranch thirty miles away, where they were cared for.

Five cowboys are known to have frozen to death—Henry Miller, John Martin, Charles Jolly and two others whose names are unknown. Two Mexican sheep herders have been found frozen to death.

Drifts Seven and Eight Feet Deep.

Two men coming in report drifts in some places seven and eight feet high, in which are hundreds of dead stock. Whole herds of sheep are completely wiped out of existence and the range for thirty miles is covered with their carcasses.

It is reported that 20,000 sheep have perished in this part of the territory. At present it is impossible to closely estimate the number of cattle lost, but it will probably be up in the thousands. Every place of shelter in town is being used as barns for snowbound horses.

The hay supply is nearly exhausted, and $100 per ton was offered by a stockman and refused.

At Textline, nine miles below Clayton, two passenger trains have been snowbound for a week. Provisions are running out, and passengers are compelled to venture out in the storm to kill cattle, the quarters of which are taken into the cars and roasted.

The storm is by far the worst ever known in New Mexico, and the exact loss of life and property cannot at present be estimated.

Bloody Battle on the Boundary.

LAREDO, Mexico, Nov. 9.—News has reached the commander of the Mexican troops in Nuevo Laredo, opposite this city, of serious trouble which is now going on in Mier, Mexico, down the Rio Grande from this point about 160 miles. Last Sunday a merchant named Guteries was shot and killed by two customs guards, who claim he refused to stop and be searched on the road between Mier and Camorog. On their arrival in Mier they reported the affair, and the citizens were so incensed they raised a mob and lynched them. About forty or fifty Mexican troops and a body of fifteen or twenty customs guards arrived there too late to save the lives of the guards, and a general battle occurred, resulting in the death and wounding of some ten or fifteen parties. Reinforcements were telegraphed for to Matamoras. The town at last accounts was in an uproar.

A Jealous Husband's Crime.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 9.—Albert Marca cut his wife's throat here, killing her instantly. The woman had been to a festival with her sister, and a young man escorted them home. It is supposed that jealousy led to the murder. Marca fled and is still at large.

SEELY HOPKINS IN HIS CELL.

A "Daily News" Representative Visits Hopkins, the Double Murderer, Now in the Bellefonte Jail.

On Friday afternoon a representative of the DAILY NEWS visited W Seely Hopkins, the man who killed his wife and mother-in-law in Philipsburg on the 21st of September and then tried to kill himself. The revolver, with which the deed was done is in possession of the Sheriff, and it is just now as it was when picked up off the pavement where it dropped after Hopkins had attempted to kill himself.

When the DAILY NEWS reporter entered the cell Hopkins was half reclining on the cot bed and, it must be confessed, looks very little the worse for his wounds and confinement in prison more than the paralysis of his left side with which he is yet afflicted and which probably is incurable.

His salutation was given with an air of indifference and unconcern that one would not expect from a person over whom there hangs the awful crime of a double murder to answer for. His conduct at all times has in it a spirit of bravado, either real or assumed, that inspires the conviction of utter degredation or a very devilish nature. He will talk of his crime in a way that seems hardly human and says that his only regret is that he did not do it six months sooner. It does not seem possible that the man fully realizes his situation.

When asked if he anticipated that his trial would take place at the next term of court and whether he so desired it, he replied:

"Oh, yes! It will occur then, and I want it to. I am anxious to know the dose of medicine to be given me, then I will know just what to take."

Hastings & Reeder have been engaged by Hopkins' brother-in-law, Mr. Geo. A Baker, of Rochester, N. Y., to defend the prisoner, and, it is understood that the defense will be a plea of "emotional insanity." It does not seem that there is much ground for a defence on that plea, as all his actions before and since are strong evidence to the contrary.

The trial will undoubtedly cause considerable excitement and it is more than likely will occupy several days. All reports to the effect that five lawyers have been engaged to defend the prisoner are incorrect, as Hastings & Reeder are his only attorneys.

Farmers look out
For winter is coming,
Be 'round and about
And get your corn in.
These frosty mornings,
Should be to you warning,
Of the coming snow
Which will cover your corn—
Your potatoes and cabbage
And, in fact, the whole farm
Will be wrapped in a blanket.
So now to your work,
With your might and mind,
Or you will fall short
And come out behind,
With your cabbage all frosted,
And your turnips un-holed,
Your corn will be cornered
And your potatoes un-tolled—
And your stock may perish,
'Twill be said unto you:—
If one would flourish
He must push his work through.

ONTARIO.

Why do They Advertise.

The man who conducts his business on the theory that it doesn't pay and he can't afford to advertise, sets up his judgment in opposition to that of all the best business men in the world. With a few years' experience in conducting a small business on a few thousand dollars of capital he assumes to know more than thousands of men whose hourly transactions aggregate more than his do in a year, and who have made their millions by pursuing a course that he says doesn't pay.

If advertising doesn't pay, why is it that the most successful merchants of Bellefonte are the heaviest advertisers? If advertising doesn't pay, who does the most business? If it doesn't pay to advertise why do the heaviest business firms in the world spend millions in that way? Is it because they want to donate these millions of dollars to the newspaper and magazine publishers, or because they don't know as much about business as the six-for-a-dollar "storekeepers" in a country town, who say money spent in advertising is thrown away, or donated to the man to whom it is paid? Such talk is simply ridiculous, and it requires more than the average patience to discuss the proposition of whether advertising pays or not with that kind of a man. His complacent self-conceit in assuming that he knows more than the whole business world is laughable and reminds us of the man who proved that the world doesn't revolve by placing a pumpkin on a stump and watching it all night.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

The Pryor-Raymond Company Opens the New Opera House with a Brilliant Performance of "Rex."

When Humes' Hall was burned to the ground about two years ago it left Bellefonte without an amusement hall or house of any kind, and, though there has often been talk of some one erecting an opera house it always failed of consummation. The arrangements that have been made in the hall on third floor of the New Bush Arcade constitutes it, as it now is, an improvised place of amusement, and demonstrates further what a nice, convenient and even pretentions opera house could be made out of it with a different arrangement and at a very moderate cost. It is a suggestion well worth considering and it does not seem that there could be any better or more profitable use made of the hall than to so fit it up.

But that is not the purpose of this article. The Pryor-Raymond Comedy company opened this season in Bellefonte with a most creditable performance and, to the discredit of the amusement loving people of Bellefonte who are all the time complaining about the lack of such amusement, there was not one female in the audience. Several ladies entered during the earlier part of the evening but, owing to the loud and boisterous conduct of some young men present, they left the hall.

If the absence of ladies in the audience is to be accredited to the supposition that the company was not first-class, it is just there where they were mistaken. Every single member composing the Pryor-Raymond company is an artist while the respectability of the company is beyond question. Mr. Richard Raymond as "Simon Trigg—Hightoned and legitimate" and Miss Clara Pryor, as "Rexina Highlee—Rex" are as good actor and actress as ever appeared before a Bellefonte audience, while the entire cast play their parts with well merited credit.

The Art of Prosperity.

The Eureka man has been doing for some time past considerable advertising, and as I do not want to get all the good there is in this world, let my brother merchants take a word of advice from me. Some have said to me, "Well, you can afford it, it don't cost you anything." But listen. I do not get it for nothing. The Eureka Grocery store pays for every line of advertising it does, and I have not put a single column into the papers that has not paid two dollars for every one spent by myself or that would have to be spent by any other store in town that would attempt the same thing. And we are now just beginning to reap the full benefit of this labor.

Ask anyone at all acquainted with our business and they will tell you that it is constantly increasing; that it has constantly increased ever since we began, and that our success is due to newspaper advertising. I do not want to be the only merchant in town that can truthfully say that while all around us works are stopping, men rae complaining that work is dull, that the Eureka is the only store whose business is not feeling the depression.

I am conducting three newspapers in this town and I can now speak from experience when I say to you that it will pay you to advertise in these papers; that it will help you much more than your wildest fancy dreams. I will set the Eureka advertisements into the remotest corner to give you the best place, or just the place you want.

People will read the Eureka articles any how, no matter where I place them Now, believe me, "it is straight,' I know it will do you good, and in the light of my own experience I advise you to try it, and if any of your customers want anything you have not got send them to the Eureka Grocery store, next door to Post Office, Bellefonte, Pa., and we will supply them, and then look out. You may never get them back again, but if you don't we will blame that on Smith, that is if you are in the grocery trade.

Tell me not that advertising
Is at best an empty dream,
For its charms are more surprising
(and the Eureka man, who has tried it tells you plainly that its effects are far more astonishing.)
Than its dull old-fashioned practitioners could ever deem.

And which ever way thou turnest
Thou will find upon the whole,
Those who advertise in earnest
(Yes, we have only to glance at the most successful firms all over the country to see that those who do the thing properly)
Soonest reach the wished-for goal.

Would'st thou then a lesson borrow?
Would'st thou know the royal way?
Advertise then so to-morrow
(Don't let a little expense deter you; you are merely casting your bread upon the waters, and you will soon have the satisfaction of knowing that each to-morrow)
Finds thee richer than to-day.

Advertise then! No retreating!
Let the senseless crockers rave:
While your heart with hope is beating
(You will always find a lot of people in Bellefonte as everywhere else who are blind to their interests; but while you are making fame and fortune)
They will find oblivion's grave.

Printer's ink will lead the battle—
Printer's ink, the balm of life;
Printer's ink—no din, no rattle—
(No, it does it's work on the quiet; and in the great war of competition which is now going on in this town, when judiciously and thickly laid on, it always)
Leads the van against the strife.

Advertisers oft remind us
We can make success sublime,
Make our pile and leave behind us
(Exactly, that's just where it comes in. We not only expect to feather our own nest, but we at the Eureka hope to provide for the prosperity and well-being of generations yet unborn, and so leave behind us)
What defies the touch of time.

Seeing which, perchance another
Struggling man with weary brain,
Some non-advertising brother,
(A good example is always to be commended, especially in the matter of advertising; and many a struggling business man seeing the secret of our success)
May with wisdom try again.

Advertise then: Up and doing!
So advert a meaner fate,
And, the wiser course pursuing,
(You will find that you will soon be in a position to look the world in the face, if you will only)
Learn to advertise and wait!

Of course, there are many ways of advertising, but we are of the opinion that there is no form or method so effective as newspaper advertising. It goes right into the home, and it goes to stay. I do not suppose that an "add" of "New Spring Goods," put in the paper and never changed the year through would do the work it should. I never tried that method. Such an "add" would have to do its most effective work, at least I should think, in the first three months.

Personally, we have always looked upon such work as a public notice that here is a careless merchant. But if you will take hold of this matter, and give it the same attention that you would or should give any other important matter, it can no do otherwise than pay. I speak to you in the light of a year's experience and "I am giving it to you straight."

God's Phonograph.

BY MRS. T. P. RYNDER.

The fruit of the tree of knowledge
Planted eastward in Eden of old,
Falls ripened by ages of culture
Into amber and glimmering gold.

And we serve to our children wonders
More strange than a sage's dream;
And we walk amid mysteries greater
Than Alladair's camp woke by its gleam.

We have chained for a bondage unending
A giant, whose stride covers space,
By whose magical power we speak cross the seas
As though talking to friends face to face.

A steed we have harnessed, whose swiftness
Out-wonders the legends of yore—
As he travels 'tween Sabbath and Sabbath
A world 'twixt the two oceans roar.

But the chief of all brain-born wonders
Is the marvel I hold in my hand;
Which records every word I have spoken—
Not as one who might write on the sand—

But affixing each tone and inflection,
As it reaches its unerring ear;
And holding it there until called for—
It may be for many a year.

Until some curious eyes after ages
Shall find it—perhaps cast away;
And unlocking, ungrinding its circuit
Shall hear what I utter to-day.

No change in the words resurrected,
None lost or devoured by rust,
Though the voice now dictating be silent—
Consigned by its dust unto dust.

So I think we record every impulse
On the cylander we call soul;
God's hand grinding each revolution,
Each day bringing nearer the goal.

No far-away record shall judge us,
No mis-shapen or faltering pen
Shall write out our soul's condemnation,
Consign us to pleasure or pain.

But God's phonograph deep set within us,
Shall receive on its spotless scroll
Every impress for good or for evil,
That can fasten itself on a soul.

—The Centre Reporter and also the Centre Democrat were last week issued as sporting papers. At least that is the inference generally drawn from a glance at the pages of both papers, as they were literally covered with game roosters and other things that go far towards the make-up of a good sporting sheet.

—There is a man in Uniontown who would like to, or at least ought to go out into some farmer's back field and kick himself for a fortnight. For several years he has been pasturing his cattle on an old field. A few days ago he sold the land to a neighbor for $600 and the purchaser immediately disposed of it for $90,000

—A new colored servant girl whose name was Mary Brown had just been engaged in a Bellefonte home, and her arrival was after the children had all been tucked in their little beds. Next morning, on descending to breakfast, the mother asked the oldest of the young hopefuls what he thought of Mary. "Oh well," he replied; "I thinks she's pretty brown."

BAYARD—STROHM.

An Enterprising Bellefonte Young Man Wedded to a Fair Young Maiden of Centre Hill.

There is an old saying that "In the spring when the birds begin to sing, then man's thoughts turn to love and marriage." This does not seem to be a well established fact as from the number of weddings occurring lately it is evident that cupid is no specializer of time or season.

Of the many weddings which occurred lately none have been prettier or more impressive than the one which occurred on Wednesday at half past eleven o'clock at the residence of Michael Strohm, at Centre Hill, when their only remaining daughter, Miss Laura Strohm, was married to Mr. Walter W Byard, but recently one of the leading druggists of this place. About two hundred guests were present to witness the union of these two happy and truthful hearts.

Promptly at 11.30 o'clock, everything being in readiness, the inspiring tunes of the wedding march burst forth in captivating melodies under the skillful performance of Miss Susie Bayard, sister of the groom, and the wedding party descended the stairs and passed through the several rooms until they took up their position in the corner of the festively decorated parlor and standing under a large floral bell, handsomely constructed of choicest flowers. Rev. William Laurie, D. D., pastor of the Bellefonte Presbyterian church, then stepped in front of the waiting couple and, in the impressive yet simple ceremony of that church made them man and wife.

Congratulations were then forthcoming, and of the newly made bride and groom it can be said they stood the ordeal like tried soldiers. An epicurean wedding feast was then served and on this was displayed wonderful culinary skill. Everything that hungry humanity could desire was served in a style that would tempt the most fastidious and in such abundance that the two hundred guests present seemed to make little impression on the amount prepared.

During the interval between the time dinner was served and the arrival of the train that was to bear the happy couple on a brief wedding tour, the time was occupied in looking at the magnificent array of presents. Here was represented the useful, beautiful and valuable in such abundance and profusion that it would be almost impossible to ennumerate them. It seemed as if everything essential to the furnishing and decorating of a home was among the array of presents spread out before the guests.

But all things have an ending and, soon the time for the departure of the wedding party approached. When they entered the carriage to proceed to the station, old shoes and slippers in abundance and veritable showers of rice were thrown after them. The train bore them away to Eastern cities where they will spend a brief time and on their return will locate in Altoona.

Among the guests present from a distance were Mrs. George Bowen and Mrs. Fravel, relatives of the groom from Canton, Ohio; and Miss Davis, of Illinois, a cousin of the bride. A great many from Lewistown and other surrounding places were also present, The ushers on this occasion were Messrs. Wilbur Harris, Archie Allison, George Johnston and George Bayard. The DAILY NEWS joins with hosts of friends in wishing the happy couple a life of unending happiness ann prosperity.

In Memory of Mrs. Harriet M Fowler

Mrs Harriet M Fowler, wife of John T Fowler, who departed this life at 8 o'clock, p. m., October 23, 1889, at No. 20 Eleven and Arch streets, Philadelphia, of paralysis, after an illness of about four months. The subject of this notice was born in Cecil county, Maryland, October 5, 1833. Her maiden name was Harriet M Atkinson, she being closely related to the Camerons, of Pennsylvania, who originally came from Scotland, and she being therefore of Scotch descent, and possessing a powerful mind; very kind toward those whom she had in her employ as well as those of her general acquaintances.

Mrs. Fowler was greatly attached to her kind husband and her home, and it was not until after she was insisted on by her husband and family physician strongly several times that she would consent to go to Philadelphia for medical treatment, preferring to stay with husband and home, which is indeed a beautiful homestead, situated about nine miles east of Tyrone, along the line of the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad, known as Green Wood Farm,

Mrs. Fowler was conscious of her approaching end and requested that she be laid to rest in the Tyrone cemetery, which request was granted, being brought from Philadelphia where she died. Enshrouded in a beautiful robe and casket her remains were taken to the Presbyterian church, of which she was a member, and there a touching sermon was delivered by Rev. Davis, after which the remains were taken to the beautiful cemetery on the hill and laid to rest. Thus endeth a useful life on earth to begin endless joys in Heaven.

—The State Board of Agriculture has sent out an elaborate paper on "Better Roads," which was prepared and read before the last session of that body on October 23, by Mr. S. R. Downing, of East Goshen, Chester county, Pa. The document is too extensive to even summarize in these columns and it would doubtless be of no benefit anyway. The one point specifically produced is the macadamizing of all county roads. This might do in some sections of the state but it is not at all likely that it would be even practicable in other parts.

Bellefonte Has

A more healthful locality than any place in the State.

Five times as many prominent men who live here than any town in the United Stetes.

Better and nicer kept streets than the average country town can boast of.

Better facilities to offer to enterprising business men who desire to engage in some extensive industry.

More cold cash laid by than any town of its size in the United States and more men who have it that know just how to keep it.

A law that allows its streets to be made the pasture grounds of cows, sheep and pigs, and how well the dumb animals know it.

More shrewd and hard working politicians than a person can imagine and it is a rather difficult job to try to guess the shrewdest.

Far more representative business houses, in every branch of trade, than can be found anywhere else, and all her citizens find it to their interest to patronize home trade.

Passably good railroad facilities and now has the promise of far better when the Sugar Valley and the Beech Creek and Western roads get down to business and build their lines through here.

Better behaved young people than can be found anywhere.

Not half the deviltry and malicious depredation is carried on here that is daily being enacted in other places of less pretentions.

A jail kept by a Republican Sheriff in which any person can go at any time and find or see nothing offensvie or depreciating. It is always clean and respectable and the Sheriff deserves much credit therefor.

More hills to the square inch than can be scared up in the world and if a stranger coming here should get homesick it certainly is not because there is no variation. It is the one thing in addition to handsome building, that Bellefonte has to offer.

Feminine Fancies.

Vandykes of white Irish guipure finish many of the imported bodices.

The sleeves of the season are wrinkled and those in the street wraps are made of velvet a shade darker than the dress.

London advices state that ostrich feather tippets are shown, and are likely to supercede the boa in popular favor.

A novelty in head gear is a cloth or velvet toque, with brim of patent leather.

Among the new trimmings are bands of kid and leather, embroidered in beads and metallic threads, and cut into scallops, fringes, vandykes, wheels, diamonds and various other shapes.

Lockets in nugget-finished gold, diamond-shaped and without jewels, have made an appearance.

One of the new felt hats for very young girls, has no crown whatever, but is merely a circle of felt, to be bent to suit the fancy of the wearer, a band inside fits it to the head.

Brocaded velvet promises to reach its old-time popularity for wraps, and the new patterns with satin grounds are very handsome.

Bracelets and bangles are in greater demand than ever, owing to present fashion in dress sleeves.

The redingote, always so useful and so graceful a model, will continue to be the favorite in all the more useful and heavier costumes. The petticoat being in different material makes a more dressy effect.

How to Build a House.

We have just received from the publisher a neat, new book, with the above title, containing plans and specifications for twenty-five houses of all sizes, from two rooms up; also, engravings showing the appearance of houses built from the plans given.

In addition, it has valuable information of permanent and practical value on subjects relative to building and building contracts, that cannot fail to be of value to those who intend to build, and it will be sent to any address on receipt of 25 cents, by J. S. Ogilvie, the Publisher, 57 Rose Street, New York.

—Byron Jones, a mine driver boss, residing in Luzerne borough, Lehigh county, committed suicide yesterday morning in a horrible manner. He had became despondent through sickness and family troubles, and at an early hour he left his home and walked toward Waddle's shaft, an open pit 900 feet deep down which he is supposed to have jumped, as his terribly mangled body was found at the bottom of the pit some time afterward. Deceased was 23 years old and leaves a wife and one child.

—A new fast train will be put on the Pennsylvania railroad next Monday which will make the run to Tyrone in two and three-quarters hours.

ANOTHER DREADFUL ACCIDENT.

A Young Girl in Attempting To Cross Before a Moving Train is Instantly Hurled into Eternity.

One more instance to the always long list of fatalities daily occurring was added when, last night near nine o'clock, a young girl was struck by a moving train and instantly killed. The particulars of this sad occurence are about as follows:

Lydia Sanders, a domestic who was in the employ of Dr. VanTries, on Spring street, on Wednesday evening, in company with some friends, had gone to Milesburg. They started for home at about half past eight o'clock in the evening, walking up the railroad. When in the vicinity of Mc'Coy and Linn's iron works the 8.49 evening express came thundering along. All the young people crossed the track to the north side and then, we are informed, Miss Sanders attempted, for some unknown reason, to recross the track in front of the fast-coming train. She missed her count of time and the cow catcher struck her limbs and threw her with such force that the side of her head struck the bumpers on the engine and caused instant death.

The train was stopped and the lifeless body of the unfortunate girl was put aboard and brought to the depot in this place and from there removed to the poor house on Willow-Bank. No blame can be attached to anyone as the accident was purely the result of carelessness.

—The Lady Washington Tea gotten up by the Presbyterian ladies came off Thursday evening, and was pronounced a grand success in every way. This was no surprise however, as anything the Presbyterian ladies undertake is bound to be a success. Matrons and Misses' looked so bewitching in their dainty caps and white aprons, that one was puzzled to know which were the most captivating. The menu consisted of fried chicken and oysters, warm and cold biscuit, cranberry sauce, slaw, celery, ice cream cake and coffee. The next entertainment to be given by the Presbyterians will be an old folks concert.

—The ladies at their "tea" last night made clear between ninety and one hundred dollars, a very successful tea. One very nice feature or occurrence of the evening was that all the "Lady Washington's," some thirty in number, had their pictures taken all in a group, by Finkbinder, the photographer. Why not put the pictures on sale and devote the proceeds to the same purpose the entertainments are being held for. It is very evident that such a nice picture as the group of "Lady's" would make could not fail to command a good price in the market.

—Some of the prisoners in the Bellefonte jail are possessed of wonderful ability to carve and construct miniature articles. Out of cigar boxes one prisoner has, with his knife, carved out and put together a small bureau about 8x12 inches in size. The workmanship on it is very good and considering its size the construction of it was no simple but rather an intricate and difficult undertaking.

TREASURER HART DEAD.

He was Stricken with Paralysis and died Early this Morning.

HARRISBURG, November 9.—State Treasurer William B. Hart died at 12.15 o'clock to-night. He did not recover consciousness after an attack of paralysis at 9.30 o'clock. A change for the worse took place last evening. He was out for a drive on Thursday afternoon and was regarded as convalescent. He had been sick for several months.

[William B. Hart was born March 15, 1842, in Montgomery county, Pa., and received a common school education, and commenced to earn his own living at the age of 14, working as a farm hand. At the age of 17 he was apprenticed to the brick-laying business, at which trade he served for about two and one-half years, when the call for three year,s troops having been made he enlisted as a private in company F, Fifty-first Pennsylvania Volunteers, participating in all the battles in which his command was engaged during the three years' term of enlistment. On the 1st of February, 1865, he received the appointment of assistant adjutant general of volunteers, with the rank of captain, and served under General Hartranft until the close of the war, being mustered out of service as a volunteer officer under war department orders dated September 19, 1865. In February, 1867, he was appointed to a clerkship in the state treasury department, and in 1871 succeeded Hon. Thomas Nicholson as cashier, holding that position until 1878, when the election of Amos C. Noyes, democrat, caused a change in that department. He was unanimously nominated in the republican convention of 1882 for the office of state treasurer but suffered defeat with the rest of the ticket. In 1887 he was again unanimously nominated by the same party for the same office and was elected. He has been secretary of the Huntingdon reformatory commission and secretary and treasurer of the Commonwealth Guarantee Trust and Deposit company since the respective organizations,

Citizen—So you think of locating here? Physician—Yes. I thought some of practicing among you.

Citizen—See here, young man, there's a good opening here for a man as understands his biz, but we don't want no practicing, or experimenting—doctoring's what we want!

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion or prostration, another with pain here or there, and in this way they all present, alike to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent or overbusy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, assuming them to be such, when, in reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some womb disorder. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages his "practice" until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine, like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery.

It's the only medicine for the weaknesses, irregularties and painful derangements peculiar to women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee that it will give satisfaction in every case, or price ($1.00) paid for it will be promptly refunded.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets regulate and cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels. One a dose. Sold by druggists. 25 cents a vial.

"H A S H!"

CUT UP, STIRRED UP, CHOPPED UP AND DISHED UP.

Col. Sobieski Rapidly Ruminates Ruinously Against Strong Drink.

A FAIR SIZED, AUDIENCE ENTERTAINED JUST FORTY FIVE MINUTES.

Col. Sobieski has been here, seen and heard. It was just 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening when he entered the Court house and was escorted inside the bar. About three hundred persons were assembled—fully two-thirds of those present being ladies, one-half of the remaining third children and the balance gentlemen.

Rev. W. A. Houck, of the Methodist church, opened the meeting by calling on Rev. William Laurie, D. D., to lead in prayer, after which he introduced the speaker of the evening in a few well put and significant remarks. Col. Sobieski arose smiling and bowing. He commenced by saying that when he was here a few months ago, during the prohibition campaign last June, he said Pennsylvania would give a majority of one hundred thousand. It gave almost double that; but the majority was the contrary way to that he predicted, hence he supposed that he would now be classed among the false prophets. But one thing he was positive of, and that is that if the ladies could have voted prohibition would have carried by over half a million majority.

The speaker then announced that he would speak from no regular subject but would take for his subject the one thing that one hundred convent girls willingly forbore eating during the forty days of Lent—namely "Hash."

In the beginning of this century strong drink was man's best friend. It formed almost a part of one's existence. But time, argument and the advance of theory and practice against its use has greatly served to disabuse the custom then so freely indulged.

The necessity for the use of intoxicating spirits is all folly and imagination. One physician who is renowned as one of the most prominent in the United States, has not in the thirty-five years of his practice used a teacupful of liquor of any kind. It is not necessary to resort to the use of liquor for anything. Gen. George A. Custer, when lying almost at the point of death, was told by his physician that he must take brandy or die. He nobly replied, "then I'll die, as I will not take the brandy." He did not die, but lived to on an after occasion refuse to allow wines to be given to his guests and ultimately died the most glorious of deaths, that of fighting for his country.

One thing that perpetuates the drinking habit is the belief that strong drink is a medicine. One individual will take a little for his "stomach's sake;" another must take a drink because he is "too cold;" another because he has been exposed to the weather add got "awful wet;" and then another who will take it because he is "very dry."

Some hard drinkers declare the nonsensical fact that they do not want to drink but that it was born in them. Their ancestors drank and they cannot help it. Somewhat after the story of the man who was red headed; his wife was very red headed; they had four daughters and they were terribly red headed; nine sons and they were awfully red headed. When spoken to about it the father said it was red-heditary in the family.

The lecturer said he once knew a mother to feed a three months' old baby three teaspoonfuls of milk punch to cure the colic. This amount for the child was equal to what twelve glasses would be to a man forty years old. The results of drinking are terrible; there is nothing about it; it will not make a man look pleasant but will convert him into a long-faced man, and if there is any one thing to avoid it is a long faced man, as they are enough to give a strong man the dyspepsia.

Here the speaker digressed a little and spoke of man's duty to his country. Foreigners coming to America should not come here with the idea that they would foreignize this country, but come with the determination to be Americans. It is not the birthplace that makes the man. The biggest fool that ever was known was born in America and lives right here in Pennsylvania and voted against the Prohibition Amendment last June.

With what pride attention can be called to that part of the constitution of the two new states of Dakota in which they declare that "The manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors of any kind is hereby forever prohibited within the boundaries of North and South Dakota." Iowa has prohibition, and shall continue to have it so long as the stars shall shine and the sun shall rise and set. Kansas has already shouldered the good work. Nebraska will next year follow suit, and it is only a question of years until every State in the union will adopt prohibition.

In 1874 when the first National Woman's Christian Temperance Union Convention was held, there was but a mere handful present, and it was thought to be a movement that would amount to nought. But in Chicago during the past week six thousand lady delegates from forty-two States and five territories were assembled to hold the fifteenth annual convention of that body. And as one sat in the galleries and looked down upon that sea of faces it was impossible to feel otherwise than a conviction of the great work they had already done and the almost inestimable work they were yet destined to do.

After thanking the audience for their careful attention Col. Sobieski announced that he expected to return to Bellefonte in a few weeks at which time he would ask the assistance of all to aid him in resuscitating the order of Good Templars that at one time flourished in this place. The meeting closed with the taking up of a collection and was dismissed with the benediction by Rev. Hayden.

Col. Sobieski is a pleasant and agreeable speaker. He attracts while he cannot fail to impress. His every motion and word is laden with the earnestness he undoubtedly feels in his work. All in all he is a speaker worth while going to hear while the arguments produced by him are incontrovertible.

Mrs. Willard on Temperance and Politics.

Mrs. Willard, in her opening address before the sixteenth annual National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, now in session in Chicago, spoke as follows on temperance and politics:

"To-day we have a hundred thousand Anarchists among us in this country who claim to have 25,000 drilled soldiers at their call, as many as the entire regular army. The multiplication of inventions, the enormous accumulation of capital, the corporate combines and octopus grip of the 'trusts' render our wage-workers uneasy. 'Bread or blood' is the inscription on many a concealed red flag and the motive of many a hidden bomb. Note the sullen look in grimy faces in mine and manufactory and on the streets; read the labor gangs of the day and see if well-to-do Americans are not asleep on the edge of a volcano.

'We spend $1,500,000,000 a year for liquor and tobacco, ten times as much as for religion and education; we have 250,000 saloons, enough to form a line from Chicago to New York, and in making alcoholic beverages we waste enough grain annually to pave a street a thousand miles long with loaves of bread.'

Turning to politics, Miss Willard said: 'Let it never be forgotten that we who are here in convention assembled present a national movement; that it is our special prerogative to note the political signs of promise along the national horizon, and yonder we see two great old warships battering each other on the high seas of the presidential campaign; we see that high tariff and Free Trade, spoils of office, the glittering prizes of personal ambition, engage them altogether.'

Miss Willard said that the thanks of the convention were due President Harrison for directing that no liquor shall be sold on the Government reservation at Fort Washington; to Postmaster General Wanamaker for his pronounced declarations in favor of Prohibition and Sabbath observance; and then continued: 'Our protest should be sent to Vice-President Morton for permitting a saloon under his new hotel.'

In conclusion, Miss Willard paid an eloquent tribute to the memory of Mrs. Hayes.

The Cost of a Locomotive.

The cost of a locomotive is of interest to everybody, and a well known authority gives the following particulars: "One man can build an eight-wheeled passenger locomotive for a standard gauge railroad in 1,500 days; it will require 1,650 days' work for him to build a consolidated ten wheel locomotive for a standard gauge. The average cost of the required labor would be $4,635, and the cost of the necessary metal is usually estimated at about $2,000. The profit may be put down at another $2,000, which would include the expenses of sale and delivery. This would make an engine, when absolutely ready for service and complete in every way, worth about $8,635.

Pay Increased.

Under a law, signed by Governor Beaver in May of this year county commissioners elected in the future will receive $4.50 instead of $3.00 per day. This pay is allowed only for the time in which they are actually in the discharge of their duties. It is also provided that the commissioners "shall annually submit to the board of county auditors a full itemized account, under oath, of the days and nature of business in which they were employed during the year." Their traveling expenses are to be out of the county treasury.

For Benefit of Y. M. C. A.

Arrangements are now under way by the young people of Bellefonte to, in the near future, give an entertainment in the Opera House, Bush Arcade, for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. of this place. The young people of Bellefonte have considerable artistic and theatrical talent and an entertainment that they undertake to give will be one worth while going to.

—A coal train parted on the mountain west of Altoona on Friday last and coming down the steep grade ran into the rear of a gravel train. One man was killed, one fatally and between forty and fifty more or less injured. The train was going at the rate of 1[illegible] miles an hour when the collision occurred.

THE CENTRE IRON COMPANY.

The Rolling Mill in Full Blast—The Furnace Ready to Start When Orders are Given.

Although it was announced in a local paper last week that the Centre Iron Company's furnace and rolling mill had again resumed business after a several months' suspension, yet, when a DAILY NEWS reporter made a visit to the works this morning not one piece of the ponderous machinery in connection with the furnace was in operation. It is true the rolling mill was running full blast but it has only been idle a day or two at a time and that only to make necessary repairs.

The true facts in the case, however, are that the furnace is now ready to start—never was in better condition, having been relined and thoroughly repaired throughout, while various improvements to facilitate the work have been added—and is only now awaiting orders from the campany to go ahead. Fire has been put in the stack to thoroughly dry and slowly heat it up and everything is in good shape to start at a moment's notice and in twenty four hours be making iron, whenever the word is given.

As to the latter that, as yet, seems uncertain when it will be said. Every day for the past two weeks orders have been expected and they are now anticipated at most any time. Mr. Hart, the general manager, arrived in Bellefonte yesterday and is now giving it his general supervision and personal attention. From present appearance it looks as if there will be a speedy resumption of business in all the departments of their works. There is to be a new furnace put in the rolling mill and that will increase the facilities of that department.

It must not be supposed that during all these weeks that the furnace has been idle that there has been no work done by the company. But, on the contrary, they have been busy mining and stocking up and now they have at the furnace hundreds of tons of good ore and huge piles of coke sufficient to last a long time. They have also been and still are shipping away the surplus pig metal that accumulated there during the earlier part of the year, and of which there is yet many car loads remaining.

It is to be hoped that the company will conclude to start the furnace soon and keep it in full blast, as that is an enterprise that Bellefonte can ill afford to be without. It is such works as those owned and managed by such men as comprise that company that build up and put new life in a community, and for this reason as well as for the best interests of the company, who can certainly not afford to allow such valuable works to remain idle, let them be started soon.

Of Interest to Farmers.

All Pennsylvania farmers are interested in a law which was signed on the 9th of May last by Governor Beaver, intended to prevent the spread of contagious diseases among cattle. It gives authority to the Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture when informed of the prevalence of contagious animal diseases, to adopt such measures to prevent its spread as he may deem expedient. He has authority to place all infected herds and animals in quarantine, and prevent the movement of such animals from place to place, except on proper permits, with consent of the Governor. Persons who interfere with him in the discharge of this duty, or who violate the quarantine shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction be liable to a fine or imprisonment, or both. When it is found necessary or expedient to kill an animal to prevent the spread of the disease, it shall be first appraised, and the owner will be entitled to a certificate of the same, which shall be paid out of the State Treasury.

—Rev. Dr. Edward McGlynn, of New York, gave a most interesting lecture at Odd Fellows' Hall, Lynn, on Thursday evening, his subject being, "How to Abolish Poverty." There was a good-sized audience, but not as large as the speaker, the subject and the address were worthy of. The talented speaker furnished much material for sober and thoughtful consideration. His address continued for nearly two hours. We assume the doctor would be greeted by a large audience should he again lecture in our city on the same interesting theme.—The Lynn (Mass.) Daily Item, May 17, 1889. Rev. Dr. McGlynn will be in Bellefonte and deliver one of his characteristic lectures in the Court House on Tuesday, November 19.

—Miss Hall-Gallagher received a well-deserved encore for her first song; and her second, "The Children of City," sung with much pathos, won for her another recall, in response to which she gave "The Better Land" in such a manner as to satisfy the most exacting critic. —Nottingham Express. The above young lady will appear in the Irish National Concert Company, the first of the series of Star Course entertainments to be held in the Court house, this place, and which will be here Tuesday evening, November 26.

—One of the fashionable "crazes" just now is that of arranging the hair to imitate a flower, such as a "buttercup" "daisy" or "violet," and sprinkle the hair with the perfume of the flower represented. Now, if the "craze" only turned to vegetables it would not seem so odd, as we have often seen a "cabbage head" and "carrot top."

This office was last Monday favored with a visit from Rev. C. B. Cross, the new Baptist minister who has just lately moved to Bellefonte and now occupies the house owned by Mr. A. J. Cruse, on East Lamb street. Mr. Cross came here from Ohio. Although he is a native of Pennsylvania yet he has not been in the State for five years. He is a very pleasant gentleman and one whom it is a pleasure to meet and know.

Mr. Will Hendrixson, formerly of Joseph Bros.' store but recently of Fleming's tailoring establishment, departed on the 2.30 p. m. train on Monday for the east. He has accepted a position to travel in the interest of the Centennial Manufacturing company, a large stationery house in Chicago, and will henceforth spend considerable of his time on the road. Mr. Hendrixson is an enterprising young man and we predict for him great success in his new position.

Mr. Harry Elting is the business manager of the Pryor-Raymond Comedy company now in Bellefonte. Affable, pleasant and courteous, he is a gentleman with whom it is a pleasure to transact business. He is a hard worker in the interest of the company he represents and his thorough and complete knowledge of the business renders him an indispensable adjunct to the company. He is courtesy itself toward all who patronize their plays and the satisfaction and comfort of the audience is to him paramount with the welfare and success of the company. In brief, Mr. Elting is a true gentleman in every respect and he will doubtless make many friends during his short sojourn in Bellefonte.

Novel Parties.

Corn parties are raging in some parts of the country. The lady attendants at the tables wear corn costumes, in which corn silk, corn leaves, corn tassels, corn stalks, etc., are used as adornments, and the menu may consist of corn cakes, corn beef, corn mush, boiled hulled corn, corn starch, and common confectionery in cornucopias. After the eatables a corn flower waltz and a corn-et solo may be indulged in.

—Miss Julia Hale, of Philipsburg, who has just returned from a four months tour in Europe, says: "While there is much to see and admire in the old countries, yet, America is the country of my choice after all." Miss Hale says one of the great differences between the cities and towns in Europe and the United States, is the perfect order and cleanliness that exists in the towns in Europe.

BOARD OF DIRECTOR'S MEETING.

The meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night was attended by ten members, and proved very successful in the transacting of necessary business. The report of the treasurer shows the Association to have a better financial standing at the present than it has had for several years. The treasurer also handed in an estimate of the amount of the assessment it would require to carry on the work for the ensuing year and also to pay off all indebtedness of the Association, as a little over nine hundred dollars. This seems a very small sum for such a large and good work and Bellefonte citizens should respond liberally and promptly to any appeal for assistance.

The much-talked of Gymnasium is now an assured thing and already bids are being received for the construction of a suitable place. This will greatly enhance the already pleasant quarters.
